Moving Mountains Chalets raises over $3,000 for Haiti

Steamboat Springs, CO. – March 29, 2010 –Moving Mountains Chalets will donate $3,290.30 to Doctors without Borders Emergency Relief Fund for disaster relief in Haiti. Recognizing the impact of the devastating earthquakes, the staff at Moving Mountains agreed in January to give 3% of all lodging booked for the remainder of the season and 2% of that value from employee wages.

Prior to managing luxury vacation homes in Steamboat Springs, Colorado, Moving Mountains owners Robin and Heather Craigen spent eight years working on and managing charter yachts in the Caribbean.

“We moved to Steamboat 12 years ago and we still have a very strong connection to the Caribbean,” said Robin Craigen, president of Moving Mountains. “Our business philosophy is to provide excellent quality and customer service to our guests. We try to ‘move mountains’ for them. With this donation we help to make a difference in the lives of Haitians in the same spirit in which we run our business.”

The employees of Moving Mountains proposed the idea to contribute to the cause together. Moving Mountains Chalet’s “Ski Aid” relief fund was established in February 2010, and was generated from a dozen bookings and personal donations from the staff.

“When the news hit about the earthquake and its devastating consequences, there was a collective feeling from the Moving Mountains team that we have to do something,” Heather Craigen, Vice President of Moving Mountains added. “We are proud that our employees recognize how fortunate we all are, and want to give to the people of Haiti and help with rebuilding their community.”
